A note on the core course essay:

Please refer to the MPhil in African Studies Student Handbook for instructions on style and referencing of assessed coursework essays, as well as guidance on examination and submission arrangements. When writing your core course essay, be sure to avoid significant overlap with the topics and case studies explored in your option course essay and do not repeat material that you intend to use in your dissertation. Bear in mind that the core course is interdisciplinary, and you will be given credit for showing breadth of knowledge and a willingness to engage with more than one disciplinary approach in African Studies.
