

PRESS RELEASE

Election 2014, the most controversial South African democratic election yet

978-1-4314-2018-6 • Current Affairs • Trade Paperback • 235x155mm • 320pp • R225.00 • July 2014 • World Rights

NEW TITLE

Providing the latest in what is already a formidable record of the electoral history of South African democracy

As voters articulate their judgments of the parties and leaders in their fifth democratic election, Elections 2014 South Africa: The campaigns, results and future prospects provides a platform for in-depth discussion and analysis of party campaigns, voting patterns and election results of the 2014 general elections.

South Africa witnessed a steady decline in electoral participation during its first twenty years of democracy. While the election results appear relatively stable across the five elections, particularly for the governing ANC, overall voter participation decreased.

– ‘Trends in electoral participation, 1994–2014’ by Collette Schulz-Herzenberg

Following the tradition of previous volumes that cover South Africa’s national and provincial elections since 1994, including Zunami! The 2009 South African elections, edited by Roger Southall and John Daniel, Election 2014 South Africa draws on the expertise of renowned authors to cover important aspects of the election, including the major political party campaigns, the media’s coverage of the campaigns, the latest trends in political participation and party fortunes, gender dynamics, the black middle class, as well as insights into the voter and public opinion on the eve of the election.

Contributors include:

- Cherrel Africa – Head of the Political Studies Department, University of the Western Cape
- Anthony Butler – Professor of Political Studies, University of Cape Town
- Jane Duncan – Professor of Journalism, University of Johannesburg
- Amanda Gouws – Professor of Political Science, University of Stellenbosch
- Zwelethu Jolobe – Lecturer in Political Studies, University of Cape Town
- Robert Mattes – Professor of Political Studies, University of Cape Town
- Amuzweni Ngoma – MA in Sociology student at the University of the Witwatersrand
- Laurence Piper – Professor of Political Studies, University of the Western Cape
- Jason Robinson – Doctoral Candidate in History at the University of Oxford

Readers are presented with more than a mere study of a single election; it also provides a contemporary understanding of electoral politics and democracy in South Africa over two democratic decades and reflects on how elections strengthen the quality and prospects for democracy.

Price and cover subject to change.

For all media enquiries, review copies, or interview requests please contact:

Neilwe Mashigo
011 628 3200
neilwe@jacana.co.za

For sales enquiries contact:

Jacana Media
011 628 3200
reception@jacana.co.za

ISBN 978-1-4314-2018-6
www.jacana.co.za

We publish what we like

ABOUT THE EDITORS

Collette Schulz-Herzenberg is a Research Associate at the Department of Political Science at the University of Stellenbosch and recently completed a Postdoctoral Research Fellowship at the Centre for Social Science Research (CSSR) at the University of Cape Town. She has worked for the Institute for Security Studies, the Institute for Democracy in South Africa (Idasa), and as an elections analyst for the South African Broadcasting Corporation during elections.

Roger Southall is a Professor Emeritus in Sociology, University of the Witwatersrand, having formerly held senior positions at the Human Sciences Research Council and Rhodes University. He has published extensively on African and South African politics and political economy. He established and co-edited the State of the Nation series of collected essays on contemporary South Africa, and likewise the current New South African Review series edited out of the Department of Sociology at Wits.

CONTENTS

Preface

List of contributors

Statistical Note

List of abbreviations

Chapter 1: The context of the South African election of 2014: Prologue to change? Roger Southall

Chapter 2: Trends in electoral participation, 1994-2014. Collette Schulz-Herzenberg

Chapter 3: The ANC's campaign in 2014. Anthony Butler

Chapter 4: The Democratic Alliance election campaign: 'Ayisafani'? Zwelethu Jolobe

Chapter 5: Julius Malema and the Economic Freedom Fighters: Birth of a Giant? Jason Robinson

Chapter 6: Inkatha Freedom Party: The Elephants' Graveyard. Laurence Piper

Chapter 7: Small parties fight for survival: Between a rock and a hard place. Cherrel Africa

Chapter 8: Women and the election: the 'not so good story' to tell. Amanda Gouws

Chapter 9: The South African media and the 2014 elections: Competition without diversity. Jane Duncan

Chapter 10: Black professionals and the ANC in the 2014 election: Loosening ties? Amuzweni Ngoma

Chapter 11: The 2014 election and South African democracy. Robert Mattes

Chapter 12: The 2014 national and provincial results. Collette Schulz-Herzenberg

Chapter 13: The party system and political prospects in the wake of election 2014. Roger Southall and Collette Schulz-Herzenberg

Also available as an ebook:

978-1-4314-2068-1	d-PDF
978-1-4314-2069-8	ePUB
978-1-4314-2070-4	mobi file